STEVE AKERS MAKES GOOD AND GETS APPOINTMENT

Steve Akers of Petaluma, son of Postmaster Mont Akers of Schellville, has made such an efficient acting street superintendent that the Petaluma City Council has appointed him regular street superintendent to succeed the late Mr. Potter, at a salary of $100 per month.

In reporting the proceedings of the city council on the matter the Petaluma Argus said:"

Councilman Healey proposed to raise the salary of acting Street Supt. Akers to $100 per month, the same amount as was paid the actual street superintendent. One of the councilmen, while not objecting, stated that the acting officer has no legal responsibility, no bonds, etc. and therefore should not require a raise and Mayor Gossage asked why not appoint Mr. Akers to the office as he has certainly made good and is doing fine work to satisfaction of all. His appointment followed and was unanimous and will give great satisfaction and he has shown himself decidedly efficient, competent and willing and is a practical steam engineer, so can take good care of the city's street plants and is doing it. He will assume his duties immediately and is the youngest street superintendent this city has ever had.

Steve is not so young but eternal youth will ever abide with him just as it has with his father before him, genial Mont Akers, who is the youngest postmaster Schellville ever had.

The condition of Mr. Ballard is not such as to cause and apprehension, for when he felt ill he took the wise precaution of seeking skilled medical attention at once. Republican

"My Country 'Tis of Thee, Sweet Land of Liberty."

Our Late Ex-President

WITH THE PASSING of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, a great American has crossed the great divide. Theodore Roosevelt was a man of high courage and an intense nature and particularly typified that phase of Americanism which he rightly termed strenuous. He waded into the midst of things and "do or die" was his creed. He dominated situations and made a decided impression wherever seen or heard. Some years ago he made Europe sit up and take notice and was admired and recognized widely abroad. Through him, America was glimpsed and the great war in which the United States has just played so vital a part has been the means of justifying traits dominant and perhaps exaggerated in one man, but plainly the out-croppings of a potential nationalism. A similar intensity, activity, enthusiasm, idealism and force which surcharged the soldier, scholar, politician and ex-president rose to the national surface at our call to war and we proved that Americans were rough riders, one and all, when we got into the saddle, industrial, financial, social and military to see through this fight against autocracy. We showed the disposition and the speed of this distinguished American citizen who had through his personality, impressed the Kaiser and others abroad, that here was a spirit to be reckoned with.

While Roosevelt could not be termed a typical American, he typified many traits inherent in the nation and some of our best.

Ratification Violates Principles of Democracy and Inflicts Ruination on State

WITH A TERRIBLE WAR for human rights fresh in the minds of us all and with democracy's benificence emblazoned across the horizon of the world as never before, we are confronted with the inconsistent spectacle of a legislature champing on the bit to destroy human rights and priveleges and autocratically nullify the will of the people as expressed at the polls. The solons at Sacramento who are out to ratify the National Prohibition amendment, despite the voice of the people on both state amendments last November, are in a blind frenzy as a result of the prohibition obsession which has seized them and cannot see that they are flying in the face of the great principle of democracy upon which this nation is founded and for the sake of which lonely graves of battle fallen American heroes are mute evidence in many parts of France today. No man at Sacramento can justly put California in the dry column since the majority vote of the state has expressed its will.

As to the entire nation's status in the matter, no matter what states ratify the measure it is a monstrous injustice to the minority. Technically, the passage of the amendment is believed by eminent authorities to be faulty, in that Congress passed it by a two-thirds vote of a quorum, and not as stipulated, by a two-thirds vote of all constituting the Congress. If the high court declares the measure faulty in its passage and therefore unconstitutional, we believe that it will not again rear its iniquituous head in the United States. The wave of disordered predjudice and injustice will have reached its crest and receded. A normal point of view will grow up in its place among the broader visioned majority who will come to see that education, volition and economic necessity, are the byways whereby true temperance may be attained and lived up to. No where in the United States can this be better exemplified than in California, the home of vineyards and wines, true allies of temperance. In the defense of this great industry and out of respect for the spirit of democracy, of which this country is the acknowledged champion, every representative of this beauteous state should die rather than commit himself to the autocratic program of destruction of our sacred right of personal liberty and the ruination of our grape growers.

Sewer In Cannery Section
A Much Needed Improvement

IN ORDER to properly care for the big new cannery plant which was erected here the past year, it is incumbent upon the city of Sonoma to make provision for the disposition of drainage and sewage therefrom. That part of town was never equipped with a sewer and Mr. Sebastiani found himself confronted with a decided problem last year. After investing fifty or sixty thousand dollars in a modern industrial factory, he was up against the proposition of completing the sanitary side thereof because of the lack of a city sewer with which to connect his plumbing. He made the best of a temporary arrangement last season, but with a growing business and the employment of more hands, it is necessary that the sewer be put in this year and that the preliminaries be started at once.

When Sonoma put in its sewer system some years ago, it left some outlying sections about town uncompleted, the intention being to build by units, and gradually extend the system as finances would permit. The sewer on Washington St. has been one of the additions to Sonoma's system of modern sanitation and now in the fast growing industrial section, where the cannery is situated, the need is urgent and tax payers no doubt will gladly authorize the city trustees to proceed at once. The cost has been roughly estimated at something like $4000.

The Sebastiani Canning Company means a lot to Sonoma and Sonoma Valley and the enterprise of Mr. Sebastiani should be helped and encouraged in every way possible.

As a matter of fact, sewage provision is something which concerns the general health and environment of a city and is a public necessity to say nothing of the accommodation it will be to those operating the big cannery.

BILL KEHOE WAS UP AT FRONT AS WAR RAGED

Writes of Experiences and Says He Heard Last Big Roar of Guns Before Armstice Was Announced.

Wm Kehoe, son of Mrs. J. F. Kehoe and brother of Miss Eleanor and Jas. Kehoe and also a cousin of the Millericks, has written the following letter to Jep Valente, which will be of interest to his many friends in this valley:

France, Dec. 11, 1918.

Friend Jep:—

I thought I would drop you a few lines to let you know that I am in the best of health and hope you are the same. I expect you are all in good humor since the armstice has been signed. I hope it will not be long before I will be back in the U. S. A., although I have no idea how long it will be. We can now write of what we have done and where we are. It took me some time to get up near the front so I will try and tell you of some of my experiences.

On the steamship Northern Pacific we left Hoboken on the night of Mar. 29, it was Good Friday evening. We went out eleven miles and anchored. I was on guard when we left. At 2 a. m. we pulled anchor and started our trip across the Atlantic for France. We were well prepared for the subs. We had abandon ship drill twice a day, some times at night while we were sleeping. When we got into the danger zone we could not take any of our clothes off and had to keep our life belt on at all times. Our convoy picked us up. There was seven torpedo boat destroyers.

On the morning of the eighth day we pulled into Brest, France. After dinner I got in with a detail and started unloading the cargo. The next day we got off and marched to a camp a two miles distance which was an old prison camp of Napoleon's and it had a high wall around it. We stayed there for four days. When we left for Gieves, a large supply base, we made the trip of three hundred miles in box cars. When night came we thought of the sleepers in the states. We were walking on top of each other. When we laid down we could not move but every body was in good humor. We arrived at 5 p. m. Saturday evening. As soon as we got off we had to start and get things ready so we could eat. The next day we put in by putting up bunks and filling bed sacks with hay. When night came the hay felt soft and we slept soundly for we were tired of hammocks and hard floors.

We started unloading cars of pipe and corrugated iron on Monday. I did that for three days. I was put into a large warehouse and given charge of the tools that were used around the camp. I held that job for two months or until our battalion was reorganized, I being put into B company. The second day our company left for St. Nazairea, a large seaport of about ninty thousand. There were tons upon tons of supplies being unloaded, the first night there, we got a job stevedoring

In three days we moved six miles further to the yard. I was given a job of checking supplies on and off the cars. I had that job for three and a half months. One day we were called into the supply room and given steel helmets. A day later we left for St. Agnon, a large camp. When we got there we were given gas masks and gas drill. We also drilled hard. It was my second experience with gas as I had it while I was at camp Lewis.

After ten days we left for the Argonne Forest, a big drive was on. The Red Cross trains were passing us on the way bringing Americans and French wounded. Some were wounded bad but others were in the lines for a long time and were coming out to rest. Their clothes were torn and they were covered with mud and all tired out, poor fellows, I never saw men look like they did. When they went through the large towns the American Red Cross gave them tobacco and magazines. I saw a train load of Belgium refugees, they were old men, women and children driven from their homes by the Germans. The American Red Cross was taking care of them. The nearer we got the slower we went and the louder the guns sounded. At four thirty we stopped and got orders to get off. The guns would light up the sky. We were not allowed any lights of any kind and we had to keep our gas masks with us at all times and we could not stay in bunches. The Hun planes were trying to get over at us all the time. The anti air craft guns would start shooting at them. They would either get hit or got back to their lines as fast as they could go. I saw one get hit one day and from the way he came down and hit the ground, I know he didn't run any more planes for the Kaiser. One of them came over one day and dropped five bombs about three hundred yards from some of us. The Americans were soon after him and they brought him down before he got to his lines.

The Americans were driving the Huns hard and sending the shells over every second of the night and day. I have seen thousands of German prisoners. In three weeks we left for the Toul sector and there was some heavy fighting going on. We came to start a new base and build shops. We had to sleep on the ground in our small tents until we got barracks. We could not have any lights here until everything was covered and we had to have our gas masks with us where ever we went.

The German planes would come over at night and we could hear them. For three nights we got orders to have our lights out so that they could not locate us because if they did something would drop. The French and American planes would go up and start him on his way with all the speed he had. At one a. m. one morning we got the gas alarm. I tell you that it did not take us long to wake up and put our gas masks on. We kept them on for some time luckily it did not get far enough back to us. We had shops near finished when the armistice was signed. We heard the last shot fired. The Americans were sure after the Germans when the orders to quit firing came. I never heard the guns roar like they did that morning. Two weeks ago I was put in the office and I liked it fine. We are straightening things up.

I have never met any of the Sonoma boys over here but I've heard from some of them quite often. I got a letter from Ed Peterson a few days ago and he said that he was safe and sound. Jep I am sure glad that I am one of the boys that came over. The day will come when we will be together again. I have met some fine fellows since I have been in the army. If you want to start a row all you will have to do is to knock a state. We all stick up for the state we are from. There are four of us in this company from California. Jep I have told you about all I know for this time so I'll close hoping to hear from you soon. Give my regards to Jack and the bunch.

MRS. ARTHUR MOSSO'S NEPHEW WRITES FROM ABROAD

An interesting letter has been received from Ray Mc Glynn by his aunt, Mrs. Arthur Mosso. Ray is well known here and is the brother of Miss Aileen Mc Glynn popular with the younger set and frequently a visitor at the handsome home of Mrs. Mosso above town.

U. S. Naval Air Station,
Treguier, Cotes du Nord,
France,
Nov. 24, 1918.

My dear Aunt:

At last, after much wandering around England and France, reporting here and there, I am happy to be able to report that I am definitely located at the above place. Exactly thirty-six days after leaving San Francisco I was assigned to duty here with the Supply Officer. Of course it goes without saying that I am glad to be at work again after my long period of idleness, and I am even happier still at the assignment I received.

This is an aviation base located in a quaint and ancient town in Brittany. The place is of the same size and general charasteristics as Sonoma. There is much rural beauty hereabout--verdant landscapes, azure skies, and anciently pictureque costumes. All the woman wear white bonnets, which resemble the hat of a Sister of Charity save for the fact that the former are transparent and smaller than the latter.

For the present I am quartered in the town hotel, which boasts of no running water and of no electricity. I go to bed by candle light and I lave my face in an ancient basin filled with water from an equally ancient pitcher. The water is brought in from the town pump. But with all its primitive qualities I like the place very much, it being a pleasant contrast to the cities I have just left, New York, Paris and London. Aside from my work, which is not at all arduous, I shall have plenty of time for study and for walks into the country. Also I hope to make the best of the opportunity presented to improve my French.

While en route from London to Brest. I had three days in Paris. I was lucky enough to be there during all the peace acclamations. Last Sunday, November 17th, there was a gorgeous fete to celebrate the return to France of Alsace and Lorraine. President Poincare, Clemenceau, the French Premier, and all the allied generals, including Marshal Joffre, participated. People, delirious with joy, surged through the streets, preventing the paraders from carrying out the order of march. Hundreds of airplanes darted thru the sky overhead. The place de La Concorde, where all the French trophies of war are on exhibition was the scene of the wildest excitement. People literally tore German planes and machine guns apart in their eagerness to obtain souvenirs. All together it was one of the most moving popular demonstrations I have ever witnessed.

While in Paris I stayed at the Continental, and from there I sent the fur coat and Nino's present into Italy. I do not imagine that the signing of the armistice in any way altered your desire to send the coat to Major D'Annunzio, so I obtained the exact address of Italian Headquarters from an Italian officer a guest at the Continental, and dispatched the package. Some one will be able to use it, and it would have been a shame not to have sent it after carrying it so many thousand miles.

I do not anticipate being here for a long stay, as we have orders now to close the station; but that does not mean that I shall leave France very soon. One never knows anything with certainty in the Navy as to where one will be; but it seems evident that, having been among the last to arrive on this side, I shall be among the last to go home. As it stands, I should like to stay over here until next June or so. In all probability when I return to the United States I shall be relieved from active duty, and that will necessitate the formulating of new plans for the future. If I can arrange to complete that law course, I shall do so on my return, and as it is impossible to do anything in that line until the beginning of the next school year, I have become reconciled to remaining over here for at least six months if necessary. Now that the war is over, perhaps I can look forward to your coming to Europe before I return.

This is a rainy Sunday afternoon, and the country-side bears a drab and melancholy look. One cannot venture out doors without beilng drenched, so I have chosen to spend the afternoon conversing with you, even if it is carried on in this unsatisfactory way. I hope that you will be able to glean some small measure of contentment from the assurance which these lines contain, that far away there is a chap who remembers. It may be due to my having been over here before; yet somehow you do not seem to me to be so very far away.

I am in my usual robust health and contented frame of mind. There is not a soul here whom I know, the rest of the fellows with whom I crossed the continent having been assigned to duty, some in England, and some at various stations in France. This fact is more than made up for in the fact that all the officers are splendid men and most compánionable.

Of course my best wishes attend you and Arthur at Christmas time. I should like very much to be at home with you for dinner, it seems so many years since I had that pleasure; but one of the many inconveniences of war is that one often has to take Christmas dinner alone, in a far country. It doesn't seem altogether like an exile to me, because I can talk to these people here in French, and because it is very much to my liking to be in France.

If Ed preceeds me home, you may be sure that I shall have him promise me to go up and see you. I feel sure that he will have many interesting things to say to you.

Goodbye for this once, and do let me hear from you just as soon as you can. My address is as I have written it above,

Gratefully and affectionately yours
RAY.

Mrs. Otto Spindler and family who have been visiting at the Randolph home for some time, are expecting to return to their home in San Francisco this week.

A COMMISSION FOR GEORGE

City Trustee Breitenbach,
Sonoma, California,
Dear George:—
I saw the piece in your window
About the chemical engine
And you came back at me
But I ain't mad, just interested
I said you'd be happy
Cause there's no chemical engine
And you said I'd be sad
Because there was no chance
To get a commission out of it.
Now I'm going to commission you
Right now, George, to find out where
You make application
For the commission
Do you think Mason & Locke
Could tell me?
And then when I get all the details
Lined up, I'm going to boost
For a better engine
Than that little cheap one
We were considering
Cause, George, one don't have much
Chance to graft in Sonoma.
You know that, and when we
Got a chance to get a swipe at
Something on a commission basis
It's got to be big
So you help me and we'll split
And let's get a big fire engine for
Sonoma. Everybody wants it anyhow
Come on now, what do you say?
No one but the fire will feel put out
If we get it
I mean the engine
Not the commission.
I Thank you!

Mr. Emilo Batto was the guest of his friend Silvio Sottanni in S. F. on Sunday eve. and Monday. Emilo reports "some time"

Sonoma Valley's first carload of coal for 1919 arrived at Batto's spur Wednesday last and contained 45 tons of choice Castle Gate Coal.

Mayor Chas. Dal Pogetto and Mr. Sam Sebastiani two of Sonoma's most popular and progressive citizens transacted business in this vicinity. last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Batto and family accompanied by Miss Adele Andrieux motored to the Ratto Stock Farm in Napa Valley on Sunday last and were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Ratto. All report a delightful reception.

It is very evident that some of our prominent orchard men expect some fruit the coming season. As a straight carload of box shooks for various kinds of fruit arrived at Batto's spur on Wednesday last and the car contained material for over 8000 boxes the first of the season.

WOMAN'S CLUB NOTES

The business meeting of the Woman's Club on Friday, Jan. 3, was well attended, and much routine business was transacted.

The donations to the Club Xmas tree proved so generous that enough was added to the standing mortgage fund to pay off $100 on the mortgage.

It was ordered that letters of appreciation be written to Rev. Isaac Cookman and Marshal Jas. H. Albertson, for so faithfully ringing the Prayer Bells at noon during the last eight months of the war.

It was decided to hold an entertainment and dance at the Club house on Feb. 22, Washington's birthday. The standing entertainment committee to take charge and arrange details.

MRS. BURMESTER LOSES HER BROTHER THROUGH INFLUENZA

Mrs. Burmester of El Verano received the sad news of the death of her brother, Carl A. Hesse, who passed away in Oakland on Jan. 8th as a result of influenza. Mr. Hesse who was 27 years of age was ill but a short time although his condition became critical last week and he was removed to a hospital. Subsequently however word came to Mrs. Burmester that he was better. She was therefore shocked on Wednesday to receive a telegram announcing his death.

Deceased was a splendid young man and leaves a wife and little girl to mourn him besides a brother, Walter Hesse and two sisters, Mrs. S. H. Tanner of Concord and Mrs. Burmester of El Verano.

The Eastern Star open installation of Thursday evening in which Mrs. Burmester was to take a leading part was called off following the sad news of the death in the Hesse family.
